LaFollette Introduces Resolvtion Providing for Another Investigation.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND.

Resolution Names The Com mittee, a Most Unusual Proceeding.

Washington April 6.-Senator La-Follette today introduced a resolution providing for another investigation of Senator Lorimer's case. It names as the committee on investigating Senators Works of California, Townsend of Michigan, Kern of Iddiana, McLean of Indiana and Pomerene of Ohio. No action was taken, as Senator LaFollette intends to speak on the resolution another day.

All of the men nominated by the LaFollette resolution began their terms in the Senate with the convention of the present extraordinary session. It is understood they were selected at a conference of progressive Senators.

It is stated that material new evi-Superintendent Sights in caring for dence has been found, since the last investigation.

The low price of eggs is due to the fact that Congress is expected to pass a bill forbidding the sale of cold storage eggs over three months old. It has been the practice to store the spring eggs and hold them until the following winter. The Egg Trust is afraid to attempt to corner the eggs and be forced to turn them loose in the summer when prices are lowest. This is the reason given by the produce dealers, but there are other reasons, chief among them Bokhara Seed Co., Falmouth, Ky. being that the high prices have driven the city people to produce their own eggs. In almost every back yard in Hopkinsville there is a flock of very cheap. cackling hens and many city people are selling eggs instead of buying them. The poultry crsze is raging everywhere and the American hen is helping to solve the problem of high living expenses.

Improved Hickory King Corn

My attention was first called to Hickory King

It was claimed to produce more corn, NOT COBS AND STALKS. especially on thin land, than any other variety. I had been planting the different varieties grown in this section, Middle Tennessee and North of Ohio River. Each had its serious defects, too much cob, too long maturing or too chaffy, and each had too many nubbins, or ears not filled out. I did not like especially the first crop of Hickory King Corn I raised. The ears were most too small, and not enough stalk.

The next year I crossed it with Huffman, giving it more stalk and longer ears, and still retaining the large, deep grains with a slightly larger cob. Since creditors of the Terry Coal & Coke then I have not planted any other corn on the farm, Co., Incorporated, and settlement to and have done all I could to prevent its mixing with be made at such intervals as divi- my neighbor's corn, many of whom plant this

In a test made at the lowa Experimental College some years ago this corn shelled out most pounds of corn per bushel out of thirty varieties. On account of the small cob, this corn did not sour in the shock in the fall of 1906 during the wet harvest, so there was no trouble about the seed for the 1907 crop, while with almost all other varieties the case was just reversed. I had no trouble getting a stand of 97 per cent, without testing seed. Samples of several varieties of corn were sent to the Agricultural Department to be tested. The report showed Hickory King to be one of the most satisfactory they had

At any rate, it is extensively grown in certain countles of that State, and its use is rapidly spread-The Fiscal Court of Christian will ing throughout Tennessee. Specifications on the rate of 10,000 stalks per acre on fertile bottom land at the Station farm averaged in 1909 nearly 90 bushels of shelled corn to the acre. The chie jections urged against it are the hardness of grain and the difficulty with which it is husked. Selection and breeding may overcome these defects as well as increase the yield. Also selections are suggested both for a one-eared variety for grain and for a prolific strain for silage, for which purpose on poor uplands it is even now well suited. Failure to plant thick enough is not an uncommon cause of unsatisfactory yield, especially if ranker-growing and large-eared varieties, which require wide spacing have so to speak, established the rate of planting.'

The most prominent seed corn catalogs in the country advertise Hickory King Corn, and price it as high as any variety except their leaders, for which they claim "The earth and the fullness thereof." Note the description taken from two of the most prominent seedsmen. One out West says: "A white variety of field corn which has the smallest cob of any in existence, of vigorous habits and a splendid and sure cropper, especially well suited to light and thin soil. A very desirable variety and largely planted in many Southern States. It does well in all Northern and Central Western States."

This seems to cover nearly all the corn section. Another local catalogue says. "The ears are rather small, but usually two or three on each stalk. It is a good yielder. The cobs are small, a single grain sometimes being large enough to cover across section of cob. The grains are very large, flinty, and of the finest quality for milling or feeding,"

What else do we want with it? This corn is particularly good for early crops and will give satisfactory results.

These are correct descriptions of the corn. It does not mature so early as some of those Northern and Western "leaders," and hence is not so light and husky. It matures earlier than the old Willis, the most widely known corn here, and will produce more and better corn. I know no corn so easy to get a stand of. Ears that have been on the ground all winter will usually germinate satisfactorily. It will stand more exposure than will "Willis" and is $ satisfactory for meal and feed as any corn grown anywhere. The one objection to It is, it shells too easily.

I can furnish this Improved Hickory King Corn, such as I plant, at $2.00 per bushel.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which the, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality they are all only symptoms caused by some weakness or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots without the use of aicohol and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seam-stresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nurs-ing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerv- | three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

EVERY WOMAN ought to possess Dr. Pierce's great book, the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a magnificent thousand-page illustrated volume. It teaches mothers how to care for their children and themselves. It is the best doctor to have in the house in case of emergency. His Ears.

A Washington man relates how, on one ocasion in the west, when he was on his way back to eamp after a day's shooting, he suddenly came in sight of a big she bear with two cubs following her in single file.

They were proceeding along a ridge, mare with foal. Whenever the mare the forms of all of them sharply defined against the evening sky.

It was a long range for a shot, but the sportsman drew a bead on the old she bear and fired. The result was amusing. The procession self hastily, then turned round, and, regarding the cub immediately behind with severe disapproval, boxed its ears soundly.

and unrelenting, and it was clearly sire of 109 others. apparent to the sportsman that she was under the impression that her frolicsome offspring had been up to some mischief that must not be repeated.—Harper's Weekly.

THE LIMIT.

"Was the play bad?" "Well, I should say it was. Why, even the gas went out at the close of the second act."

WANTS PLAIN TITLE.

Bishop Cortlandt Whitehead of the Episcopal diocese of Pittsburg in a letter to the Churchman, discussing the subject of a change in the title page of the prayer book, The Illinois Central will sell round- says that he personally would prehead adds that this would "throw Los Angeles, San Francisco and the book out for all men to use, for care to translate and use it. Thereby we get rid of discussions concerning Tacoma, Everett, Bellingham, Wash., Catholie, Protestant of Episeopal and have a title page unsecturian, untheological, without a narrow and doctrinal label on its very front."

MANUFACTURED DIAMONDS.

In an address before the Royal institute in London on the development of explosives during the last 50 years, a distinguished scientist related a remarkable story of what occurred during one of his experiments with a gunpowder made of cordite and earbon. After the explosion, in which the elevation of temperature was estimated to have been about 4,300 degrees Centigrade, a residue was left in the explosion chamber in which the investigator afterward found diamonds. They were, of course, exceedingly minute, and must have been formed from the enrbon under the influence of the immense heat and pressure developed at the moment of the explosion.

Well Said.

There is a discussion in Congress, according to the Washington corresponden's a to w ether Caleb Powers, the newly elected Congressman from the Eleventh Congressional District, shall be allowed to retain his seat because of the fact that he is a convicted felon.

The editor of the mes not the shadow of a doubt in his mind that Caleb Powers was a conspirator in the plot that resulted in the murder of William Goebel; that he aided and abetted that conspiracy; or that he conveniently absented himself from his private office on the day that the fatal shot was fired from a window of that particular office. That he attempted to escape from Frankfort in disguise before an indictment was found against chim is known to the writer and to huridreds of others who were in Frankfort at the time. That he was thrice convicted of the murder is a amatter of court record. That he was finally pardoned by a partisan Governor after a farcical examination is known of all men who kept up with the events of the times But with that record, he went before hls party in the Eleventh District and won the nomination and election.

Some good people voted for him on account of party regularity. Some voted for him because they were ignorant of the record. Some voted for him because they thought Goebel ought to have been killed, and gloried in the murder. Through this chain of circumstances he was elected Congressman from his district. There can be no doubt he received the majority of the votes cast. For this reason, we think that he ought to be permitted to keep his seat and represent his people as best he can. If they can stand it, the rest of the country ought to bear up under it.

Countzler's Drug Store

The Location

The store is located on the Phoenix corner, Ninth and Main Streets, popular for half a century as a hotel and more recently occupied by the Commercial Bank & Trust Co. The location is central and convenient for all and we hope to make it a point of interest to all who need drug store goods.

The Equipment

The store has been equipped in most modern and attractive style and at large expense. The fixtures are of mahogany throughout and of latest design.

The show cases are plate glass with an eighteen inch marble base. These cases are the newest style and especially adapted for display of the up-to-date goods that will be shown in

Our soda fountain is one of the finest in this part of the country.

Everything New

Our fixtures, fountain and other equipment as well as the entire stock of goods is new. Our aim has been to equip a store that in all its features is modern to the very hour. Quality counts in the drug business and here quality will be maintained in every department. Service will be high grade at the most reasonable cost.

Mr. Gaither's Department

Our prescription department will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Ed. Gaither.

As Mr. Calther has been identified with the drug business for a number of years, no introduction will be necessary.

His standing as a pharmacist is the highest, and the physicians of the vicinity, as well as his large circle of friends and acquaintances, wili be pleased to know that he will preside over the splendld prescription equipment of the new

The Management

The proprietor has been engaged in the drug business all his business life, having conducted a store in Greenville the past ten years. He is well known to many of the people of Hopkinsville and hopes to rapidly extend his acquaintance, as he comes to the city with a view to making it his permanent home.

The Policy

The aim in view is to provide a thoroughly up-to-date drug store, one that will be fully worthy of the community. While the equipment and the goods are fine, prices will be as low as can be had anywhere.

Right prices are part of good service and we shall endeavor to gain and maintain trade by making it worth while to trade here.

Special Lines

We shall make a specialty of the famous Violet line of Imported toilet goods. This line is made in Paris and we are showing a complete stock of the goods.

We shall also carry the celebrated Modjeska Caramels, made in Louisville, and the Jacob's line of Chocolates, made in New Orleans.

You are Invited

We extend a most cordlal invitation to everybody to call and inspect the new store. Don't wait until you need something in our line. Just make us a neighborly visit, which will be as highly appreciated as though you came to buy, We have a store worth seeing and hope you will come and see if you did not on opening day,

Adventures by the Way

When Cecilia saw the bamboo tea tray and stand in the window of the little shop her whole soul yearned for them. So she was irresistibly drawn tbrough the doorway and soon she had purchased them in spite of the fact that she would have to carry them home herself.

She started off with them bravely enough, though the upper edge of the tray in its paper wrnppings reached above ber waist and she kicked the legs of the stand at each step.

"Well, it's light, anyhow," she told herself consolingly.

It was light. At the first street crossing a gust of wind caught the tray and flapped it like a great wing, propelling Cecilia into the path of an approaching automobile, from which she was dragged by a disapproving policeman.

"Cab, lady?" called a cabman at the corner as she neared him. "Didn't know they allowed moving vans on the bullyvard," he remarked to a companion, before she was out of ear-

"Disgusting creature!" muttered Cecilia, hastening on. "I wonder if I'd better take the elevated over to the station or go on and take a bus?" she reflected. She regarded the steep incline of the elevated stairway and decided on the omnibus.

"I'll get in an empty one and go up to the front corner," she planned, "and then these things won't be in the way of other people." A small inner voice which Cecilia quickly suppressed, added: "Not so conspicuous." "I'm so glad I bought them," sho assured herself definitly. She found the omnibuses all partly edge of the sidewalk to wait for an empty to draw up.

"Pardon me," said a haughty voice behind her. "I wish to get into the omnibus. You and your-ah-parcel are blocking the way."

Cecllia stepped hastily out of the path of a portly, hobble-skirted personage and the legs of the stand became entangled with the feet of a passing pedestrinn. "Confound it!" exclaimed the man, disentangling his feet and glaring at the cause of the accident. "Wonder she wouldn't try to carry home n whole furniture store," be remarked to his companion as they passed on.

Cecilia made her way to the inner edge of the pavement and, turning her back to the passersby, gazed with apparent absorption into the shop win-

'Say, ain't that brown one perfectly swell!" cried a voice behind her. "Let's get up close to the window so's I can see bow that lace is put on."

Two women pressed close up to the window, one of them encountering the legs of the stand before she percoived

"Well, for goodness' sake!" sbe exclaimed, stumbling. She looked from the parcel to Cecilin and then with a grin at her friend. "What do you know about tbat!" she said.

"I thought moving day May," giggled the other.

The driving up of an empty omnibus offered Cecilin an avenue of escape, and she dived across the sidewalk and plunged into it, seeking the farthest corner in which to stow berself and her bundle.

"This isn't so bad, after all!" she thought.

Hardly did the reflection pass through her mind before consternation entered it from another quarter. "Oh, bere's that Mr. Selby, Mrs. White's brother," she said to herself. "I do hope be won't see me. Of course, he will, though "

"Well, Miss Thorpe, this is what I call lucki" exclaimed the young man, fitting himself into the vacant place beside her.

"Why, Mr. Selby!" cried Cecilia. "Luck! I should say so. I was just thinking that I should have to ride over to the station alone."

"Let's wait until these other people get out," suggested young Selby We've got lots of time for the fivetwenty.

The woman opposite rose and made for the door. "I beg pardon," called young Selby

THAT TOUCH IN TIME

IT MEANS THE SAVING OF MANY ANNOYANCES.

Small Nuisances Too Long Neglected When Little Time or Troubis is Needed to Remedy Them-Some Useful Hints.

It is astonishing how we impose on our patience and strength by neglecting little things about the housecreaky hinges, doors that latch and unintch bard, catches that don't catch, loose handles-annoyances we notice every day, but never think of repairing unless some unusually provoking thing happens in connection with one of these little slipshods.

A good plan is to go over the house periodically and remedy these matters-you will be surprised at the number of them.

For dresser and chiffonier drawers that stick, remove the drawer, turn upside down, and rub the bottom edges with soap. Rub the places where the drawers rest with soap also. If the dresser sticks because it is too close a fit, get some one to shave it off a bit at the edge with a

For creaking door hinges apply a little vaseline with n duster. Sewing machine oil will do, too, or even olivo oil if there is nothing else handy.

Buy a small bottle of stain and tin of white enamel and touch up all the spots on the floor or door and window frames that bave become marred. Take out all the unneces sary screws and hooks that mark the places where curtnins used to hang.

if the wall paper is torn and the plaster is broken, flil the broken place with plaster of Paris, then cover it with a piece of plain white paper coming just to the edges of the torn wail paper. With the children's water colors paint the plain paper, following the design of the wnii paper, and the place will never be noticed. Of course, this is unnecessary if there are nny left over pieces of wall paper at band.

Repince all lost knobs and correct faulty entches on wardrobes and cupboard doors in particular. Doors which will not shut should be planed off at top or bottom.

Gas fixtures may be made as bright and shining as new with metal paint. Window blinds that are worn and dirty may be unrolled, taken from the roller, turned end for end and tacked on again, and n new hem sewed in the windows often require Pantry sbading, either from the sun or from the passerby. This may be cheaply and satisfactorily done as follows: Cut white tissue paper the size of the panes, smear the glass over with milk, then press the paper on smoothly. When dry the panes will resemble frosted glass and cannot be distinguished from such from the outside. When tablecloths and sheets are new, a piece of tape should always be sewn flat on the hem at each corner, so as to double the life of the articles and also prevent it from getting out of shape. Another good plan 13 to occasionally fold them width ways instend of lengthways. This prevents the folding from niways being in the same place and thus wearing into holes quickly.

Noodles and Oysters,

Noodles are sometimes used instead of cracker crumbs or grated bread when preparing a dish of scalloped oysters. Cook the noodles like macaroni. Arrange them and the oysters in alternate layers, putting some of the noodles at the bottom of the disb, as well as at the top. Season with sait and paprika and moisten with oyster liquor, and, if convenient, add some crenm. Spread the top with butter, and bake until cooked through and a delicate brown on top. About twenty minutes will suffice.

Macaroni may be used to advantage in the same way.

Ham Baked in Milk.

A delicious way to prepare ham is as follows: Get a slice of ham about one and one-half inches thick, place in a shnliow pan, and cover with milk. Bake in a slow oven until milk bas ture," he whispered laughingly to Co-soaked into the bam and until the ham is a light brown on top. Gravy is made by adding milk to the grease which remained in the pan after ham has been removed and then thickened

Dominoes,

Have a plain cake baked in thin sheets and cut into small oblong pieces the size and shape of a domino, a trifle larger; frost the tops and sides: when the frosting is cold, draw the black lines and make the dots, with something to say about that horrid a soft brush dipped in melted choco-These are nice for children's parties.

Custard Pie. Beat together till light four eggs with four tablespoonfuls of sugar, then add one pint of milk and one teaspoonful of orange extract. Line a deep ple plate with a rich pastry, pour, in the custard, place in a moderately bot oven, and bake until the pastry is brown and the custard firm. Serve bot or cold.

Use of Lime in Ceilar. A box of lime in an out-of-the-way corner of the cellar belps to keep the atmosphere dry and pure.

Pierpont Morgan t. ed to nee re the collection-In-President Carfield and Ceneral Ben amin F. Butier said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Krytew of Rytews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 greef volumes and is placed within hypur yeach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial flatory of the Civil Warler than camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret ervice, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

Simplicity the Festure and Burnished Gold and Mahogany Are the Newest Colors.

Simplicity is a marked feature of the new styles in picture frames. And burnished gold and mahogany are the newest colors for frames. The former is a duil gold, and is so duil that it and mahogany biend beautifully, and so are often used together.

The effect of such combination is so entirely different from the old style of framing with wood and a strip of gift next the glass that it is difficult to believe that the same colors are just carried out in the new tones. These shades used together bring out brown pictures effectively.

An authority on art furnishing is re sponsible for the information that the gold alone, the wood alone, and the two in combination may be used to successfully frame nll kinds of pictures that are generally hung on wails of living rooms, parlors, libraries and Narrow frames, from one to two inches, are correct for medium-sized pictures, while for smaller subjects, such as photographs, only a half-inch frame is required. The latter is usually of dark wood, beautifully polished to show the grain.

Both oval and square frames are correct. The latter are more expensive, because more difficult to make and polish.

Wooden frames are flat and plain, except in a few cases, when a little carving is seen as a motif placed in the center of the top of a square frame. The plain frames are, however, considered better taste.

Gold frames are exceedingly dainty in design, smail delicate molding being preferred to boid patterns. Indeed, some of the frames give the impression of being worked with the needle and gold thread used generously, rather than moiding.

HIS SUNDAY DINNER

"Really Laura," remarked Greenly reproachfully as he attacked the roast plexion. chicken for the fourth time- with an uasuccessful carving knife, "I wish you wouldn't buy these antediluvlan fowls. I simply can't hack this one ter or tenderer chicken in his market, tion. Frank," sighed Mrs. Greenly.

"Well, then, I don't think much of his market. 1 tell you, Laura, old Smaus doesn't give you a fair deal. I think it would be a good idea for us to jolt him by transferring our patronage to another market. That old fellow thinks he can put off any kind of inferior stuff on us. He imposes on our good nature."

"It sounds easy, Frank, when you say we should trade elsewhere, but you know very well that there isn't another market in Wayland and I certainly can't go into the city every day and carry out our supplies."

"Well, I can get 'em and hring 'em out," declared Greenly. "I'll get a chicken for our next Sunday dinner that won't be made of India rubber." "I wish you would, dear," said Mrs.

Saturday morning when he was leaving the house Mrs. Greenly reminded her hushand that he was to bring home a chicken from town.

"I won't forget it," he promised her. "I've got it in my memorandum hook and I'li huy one that can he cooked in half an hour."

In the afternoon when he telephoned that he would not be home until late that evening Mrs. Greenly inquired if ho had hought the chicken for their Sunday dinner.

"Of course I have, Laura," he answered. "You seem to think I am as heedless as a schoolhoy," he added.

"Oh, no, Frank, only I know you havo so many business matters on your mind," said Mrs. Greenly sooth-

Greenly thereupon assured her in a mollified voice that he was never too busy to remember to do things for her. "Where's the chlcken?" she asked when he appeared at 10:30 o'clock that

"The chicken? By George, Laura, I well, you see, I had to go to that extra meeting of the directors tonight and I never thought of the chicken. I left it on the top of my desk in the office. I had so much on my mind today. You can understand, can't you?" "Yes, I can quite understand," answered Mrs. Greenly, almost too goodnaturedly. "Of course, though, we can't get anything out here at this hour for our Sunday dinner. But I can make some codfish balls, and they will do very well." "Codfish balls!" Greenly's look of depression deepened. "Oh, you won't have to do anything so desperate as that. I'll run into town the first thing in the morning and get the chicken, I can return with it in plenty of time for you to have it cooked for dinner." "You're sure you won't mind, Frank? For you know it won't he any trouble to make the codfish balls."

"No, I'd really like to go. I can read the newspapers going and coming on paper will be Democratic and regthe train and of course it would be ular. foolish to let that chicken lie there and spoli in my office."

"Yes, that's so," agreed Mrs.

The next morning she awakened her husband a half-hour earlier than his customary time to rise on Sunday. He bore the curtailing of his nap with as good a grace as he could muster and after breakfast he left home for the city with a semblanco of cheerful-

Two hours later Mrs. Greenly opened the door for him with a welcoming smile, saying: "Well, did you get it?" "Get it? The chicken? Why, yes, I got it—but I—well, the fact is, Laura,

I left lt on the train!" "Fortunately," said Mrs. Greenly in restrained, even voice, "Smaus seils very good saited codfish and we happen to have some in the house."

Murder of Joan of Arc. The controversy as to which of the two nationalities has to bear the re-Joen is futile, irrelevant, and even childish. It is true, on the one side, death, and were delighted when she of fifty cents per ticket. was executed. It is even probable that if she had escaped the torch, she would have been put to death by the English in the river, or by the dagger, or by the rope; but it is also true that it was Frenchmen who issued against her the indictment, who pushed her prosecution, who pronounced her sentence, who carried it, into execution. But again I fall back on the point that neither the one nor the other of these protagonists in the tragedy of Joan of Arc can be held to stand for their respective nations or peoples. The French who did Joan of Arc to death were not Frenchmen in our modern sense. They were simply Burgundians, tied to the faction of the Duke of Burgundy, tled also to the Plantagenet faction, half English, half French, who then were fighting with another faction for the soil of France. Turn the question bow you will, no same historian who tries to study history with an impartial eye can make the story of Joan of Arc into an indictment against a nation. T. P. O'Counor, in London T. WOMAN MAYOR.

Ties Male Candidate And Election Board Gives Her The Office.

Hunnewell, Kas., April 4.- Mrs. Ella Wilson is now Mayor of this town. At the city election yesterday she and O. M. Akers were tied for the office. At first it was suggested that the two candidates draw lots for the office. But that did not at peal to the male voters. They said if Mrs. Wilson could race a man to a tie she ought' to have the office. Therefore the judges of the election declared her elected.

Now she says she is going to clean up Hunnewell.

In her campaign speeches she declared the town was harboring bootleggers and that the pool halls were beiog run contrary to law. She proposes to correct these alleged in fractions of the statutes.

WHEN HE WOKE UP

It was a surprise to Burchard when he dropped in to call upon Sylvia to find a straage young man occupying his special chair and acting quite as much at home as though he belonged there by right, Burchard had been calling on Sylvia for menths, even years, and had sat in that particular chair innunterable times. A sensation of being ill used and injured surged through his soul as he bowed with stern cordinity to the young aran.

"Mr Glilmyer," Sylvia was saying sweetly, "Is a brother of my old school friead, Dot, of whom you've heard me talk so often, Ted. He's come to Chicago to go lato business.

Isn't that delightful!" "Lovely!" agreed Burchard. There really was nothing else that he could say. Speech seemed to have been smothered withia him by that first wave of surprise which had over whelmed him.

Try as he might to enter into the conversation, Burchard found himself relapsing palafully into silence ever; little while

The more he thought of the sltuation the more Indignant Burchard grew. By the time he said good evening he was able to give Sylvia the frostlest sort of nod aud barely to touch the tlps of her fingers. The surprise in her eyes was succeeded hy a llicker of something else, which was quickly hld by her lowered lids. Burchard would have been a good deal surprised if he had known that instead of dragging herself slowly up the stairs to weep over his cruelty Sylvia dropped down on the bottom step when the front door closed and Naturally Burchard called the next evening to atone for the coolness of his good-hy. Sylvia was wearing a particularly large bunch of violets. which he eved malignantly.

"I love violets," Sylvla said absently, patting them. "You can almost smell these!"

"Almost," Burchard repeated, bewildered. "They're artificial," Sylvia explained. "Did they fool you?" The bound of relief that Burchard's heart gave when he found Gillmyer had not sent the flowers was perfectly evident, hut Burchard was too upset to grasp the fact. He was conscious of an inner trlumph when he left at 10:30 that he had had the field to himself. But these triumphs were few, for Gillmyer hobbed up at all sorts of moments.

"He knows so few people in town," Sylvia said once. "And, really, he's awfully nice, don't you think, Ted?" "Fine chap," agreed Burchard, with a sensation of swallowing red-hot coals.

The worst of it was that Glilmyer really was a fine chap. He broke into the Sunday night chafing dish suppers that Burchard had been wont to enjoy with Sylvia, and he cut up the cheese and heat the eggs as though that had always been his duty. Between whiles Gillmyer invited Sylvia to go to the theater and brought her books and candy as though there was no reason why he shouldn't. The little rankling jahs attached to this phase of the situation was that there really was no reason. Yet Burchard felt outraged.

his dismay that Sylvia had gone out somewhere with Gillmyer without the preliminary of letting him know when it was his regular night to call made Burchard see stars. Women, he said to himself cuttingly as he strode home at a great pace, are fickle, unreliable, frivolous, unworthy and unnecessary cumherers of the earth. He had thought Sylvia different, but that was merely because he was an imbecile. Burchard sat and stared at the wall for an hour, smoked three cigars and then turned in. At midnight he was still awako. "I suppose they are just ahout getting home now," he mur-

It amazed him that Sylvia should show no trace of contrition, shame or concern about the manner in which she was treating him. She acted as though she was perfectly all right and appeared to have no uneasiness over Burchard's acquired gloom. On the contrary, she seemed to be having a decidedly good time. That she actually could enjoy Gillmyer's society was an agonizing blow to Burchard. His mind was, such a mixture of unhappiness and bewilderment that he did not even try to figure out a solu-ile was agreeably surprised when he called one evening to flad that Gilliuyer was not present. He took his old chair, but sat on the extreme edge because it really wasn't all his chair any more.

"Mr. Giffmyer," Sylvia remarked, casually, "has been sent west for a

"Thank the Lord for that!" Hurchard burst out, explosively. "I don't wish him any bad luck, but I hope the train runs off the track!"

"Why, Ted Burchard," sald Sylvia, in proper horror. "The idea of your feeling that way!"

"I've just discovered how I feel," said Burchard, grimly. "And now that I know my esteemed friend Gilimyer can't break in on us at any minute and that I actually have your undivided attention, i'd like to go into detalls and elaborale on the subject!"

"Why, Ted!" said Sylvia agaiu. "You amaze me! But-er-go on, please!"
